PRESS RELEASE

INGE-GLAS® MANUFAKTUR Glass blowing craftsmanship

Neustadt bei Coburg, 10 February 2021

The Müller-Blech family which is behind INGE-GLAS® MANUFAKTUR in Neustadt bei Coburg in Bavaria, Germany, is dedicated to the glassblowing craft for 15 generations. The glass mould collection of the Müller-Blech family is unique with approximately 15.000 exhibits from two centuries. In the in-house mould construction historical moulds are maintained and preserved for use, but also new, modern ornaments are manufactured. In the INGE-GLAS® MANUFAKTUR, all ornaments are hand-blown according to old craftsmanship. Balls, finials and many more ornaments are formed freely in front of the flame by experienced glassblowers. For all figurative aspects, the evenly heated glass is blown in special shapes with much care and finesse. The distinctive brilliance of glass decorations by INGE-GLAS® MANUFAKTUR is created as a result of the application of a genuine silver coating by hand. Each ornament is filled with a pure silver solution, which then covers the inside of the glass. Up to 30 steps are necessary to give an ornament its final look. Tiny details such as eyes, pupils and eyebrows are painted with care and a very steady hand by our qualified INGE-GLAS® painters. Every single ornament is painted by the same painter from the first to the last painting step. Thus, every ornament gets its unique personal character. Each ornament of the INGE-GLAS® MANUFAKTUR is subjected to a final quality inspection. Only when this quality check is passed the respective ornament will be provided with the registered trademark – Star Crown®. This guarantees the hand-blown and hand-painted craftsmanship from Germany.
